ter's Mandrake Bittera Tablets,

Not a few moralists have declaimed upon the evils attendant upon the keeping of a fast horse but a case in city court. The day morning goes to show that a slow horse with the right owner can also work mischief. The particular horse in question Tuesday was that of John Butler, a young man living in the northerly portion of the city. Butler was in court charged with the larceny of 5% pounds of hay from David Cosgrove on the previous night.

Congrove is the owner of a place near Queen City Park, upon which there is a barn. In the barn is some hay. Cosgrove does not live at the place but chanced to go down there late Morday evening and when he rounded the corner of his stable yard was somewhat taken aback at finding Butler there, caimly loading up from the well-stocked hay mows. Another man is thought to have been assisting in the operation but he was not secured. Cogrove took measures for the retention of Butler and Sheriff Roeves was awakened to take him in charse.
